Management of tourism destinations and suppliers is a big challenge. So many modules need to be coordinated, such as the command and dispatching module, business management module, electronic monitoring module, security module, traffic management module, resource management module, tourist service module, and marketing promotion module. So many supporting elements need to be ensured to work well such as infrastructure and data. So many opinions from different groups need to be harmonized, such as tourists, market, enterprise and government.

In this issue, studies about management in smart tourism were collected. These cases include related research about China and Latin America. Detailed suggestions and innovations are provided here. Management of special situations is also contained. Many thanks to all authors to publish their valuable articles in our journal.

Editorial board member
Dr. Eldar Magomedovich Eldarov